Krystin's involvement with children on the autism spectrum was inspired by her best friend's son, Connor Daly. Moving to Austin with her family in 1983, Krystin attended Westlake High School (Class of 1990) prior to her acceptance into the Plan II Honors Program at the University of Texas at Austin. She graduated Phi Beta Kappa from U.T. in 1993 and received her Master's Degree in English Literature from Georgetown University (Washington, D.C.) in 1995. After five-years in Chicago working as a professional writer for an international consulting firm, Krystin returned to Austin in 2002 with her husband, attorney Mike Johnson, and infant daughter, Madeleine Rose. Krystin currently writes for an Austin-based consulting company and volunteers at her daughter's elementary school (Forest Trail Elementary). She also serves as a vice president for the Austin Lawyers' Auxiliary and an assistant coach for her daughter's t-ball team. Krystin is a member of the Lost Creek Moms' Club and the Junior League of Austin.
